

Quoin Pharmaceuticals Submits Scientific Advice Briefing Document to EMA for its Lead Asset, QRX003, for Netherton Syndrome

March 10, 2022

First Step in Development Process of QRX003 for the EU

ASHBURN, Va., March 10, 2022 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Quoin Pharmaceuticals Ltd. (NASDAQ: QNRX) (the "Company" or "Quoin"), a specialty pharmaceutical company focused on rare and orphan diseases, today announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Quoin Pharmaceuticals, Inc., has submitted a Scientific Advice Briefing Document with the European Medicines Agency (EMA) for QRX003, the Company's investigational treatment for Netherton Syndrome, a rare and devastating genetic disease for which there is currently no available treatment or cure.

The briefing document is intended to solicit feedback and guidance on the clinical and regulatory pathway for advancing QRX003 into clinical testing and subsequent potential marketing authorization submission and commercialization in the EU.

"The submission of this briefing document is the first step in the formal development process of QRX003 as a potential treatment for Netherton Syndrome in the EU," said Dr. Michael Myers, Chief Executive Officer of Quoin. "We look forward to receiving guidance from the EMA on the clinical and regulatory requirements to advance the development of the product in the EU. Quoin has previously received written guidance from the FDA on the clinical requirements for the US and key elements of that feedback have been incorporated into this submission to the EMA."

About Netherton Syndrome

Netherton Syndrome, a form of Ichthyosis, is a rare, hereditary skin disorder caused by a mutation in the SPINK5 gene (serine protease inhibitor, Kazal Type 5) that leads to severe skin barrier defects and recurring infections, as well as a pronounced predisposition to allergies, asthma, and eczema. Patients also often suffer from severe dehydration, chronic skin inflammation and stunted growth.

Currently, there is no cure for Netherton Syndrome, nor are there any approved therapeutic treatments.
